September 9, 1942.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT:

I am listing below one or two things you might want to know when you are talking to Philip Graham about the Armed Services Committee.

(1) Since your Executive Order was issued, all important opposition to the draft on the basis of the Army's race policy has disappeared. Philip Randolph and Grant Reynolds have withdrawn from their Committee Against Conscription, and only a few conscientious objectors and other war resisters remain in this movement.

(2) Negro leaders and their white friends have been universal in their praise of the Order and in their support of the proposed Committee. Perhaps the most significant of these is the group of sixteen prominent Negroes who were called in by Secretary Forrester to advise him on racial problems in the defense establishment. The report of this group was submitted and published last night before yesterday. The several important recommendations of this group were directed primarily toward the Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services, and the group asked that this report be submitted to the Committee as soon as it was made.

(3) The Committee will have complete minority press support. The Negro Press, which had been conducting a vigorous campaign against the Army's racial policy, has now abandoned it. The Negro-American newspapers were particularly bitter over the question of ROTC units in the Negro land-grant colleges. This matter was negotiated during the summer and the Army has improved its position in this respect, and there is now no organized newspaper campaign in existence.

DONALD S. DASCH
Administrative Assistant
To the President