Hon. Harry S. Truman,
President of the United States,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

At times during the discussion of exchange of prisoners in the Korean War, I have read that many of the prisoners in our hands do not want to be returned to the Chinese or North Koreans. One cannot blame them.

I don't suppose our government would force even one such prisoner to go back, no matter what the consequences or threats. It would be a dishonorable and cowardly act, and no good would ever come of it.

One cannot blame the parents of our boys who are captives of the enemy, if they want to trade anything to get their boys back. But the government is in a different position from the parents, and must consider the life and limb of millions of other boys who may suffer if we exhibit weakness or fear in dealing with the enemy.

Respectfully yours,

Donald S. McKinlay
