Kansas City, November 17, 1953

The American people have always been for fair play.

I am highly pleased by the response to my statement as indicated by the thousands of telegrams coming in from every state in the Union.

[Signature]

HARRY O. TRUMAN
Act. Sec. of the Treasury

Mr. White was Act. Secretary of the Treasury under Henry Morgenthau who was Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Morgenthau made a plea for the elimination of the industrial section of Germany. Mr. White helped him clear up this plan.

It was discussed at Quebec when President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill met there to discuss a number of things.

When Mr. Roosevelt died and October came President a conference was agreed on by Stalin, Churchill and me.
The conference was to be held at Berlin. It is known as the Potsdam Conference.

The Morgenthau wanted to go. I told him he could not go and he resigned from the Cabinet.

After Mr. Vickers became Secretary of the Treasury, a bank conference was called for Savannah. It was decided that Mr. White should not go to the conference and he resigned.

There had been some question about White's friendliness to Russia and the F.B.I. had made a report on him based on statements made to the F.B.I. by a crook and a breez. Mr. Beachley, and Webster Chambers. Statements by these people are about a reliable as to facts as are those of any communistic and a Communist is not supposed to tell the truth, let alone adhere to torture.

Mr. White appeared before one of the Committees of Congress and swore that he was a loyal citizen and that the Beatley and Charater report of the F.B.I. was untrue. Mr. White then read of a fact which had been passed upon. Convicting a dead man of treason on a Communist F.B.I. report is in line with present Administration policy.