WASHINGTON, January 32. (714) — Brigadier-General William A. O'Deyr, newly appointed director of the War Refugees Board, said today that he intended to press for action by the United Nations War Crimes Commission on crimes committed by the Axis nations against their nationals.

During his first press conference since he took over the job, General O'Deyr asked if he intended to continue the efforts of his predecessor, John W. Ethell, to have the government issue a clear-cut statement serving notice on the Germans that crimes against German Jews would be punished. O'Deyr said firmly: "I certainly do." He added that he felt that if people behind the scenes who were responsible for crimes were reminded of what President Roosevelt has said about the punishment of war criminals, their potential and present victims would be in less danger.

"From what I've seen," O'Deyr said, "the War Refugees Board has done a magnificent job, but there is still a good deal to be done. I must learn the details, and discover just what the job to be done is." He added that he would bring the unpaid refugee job to the $500,000 a year post as Kings County district attorney, and that the work of the War Refugees Board has slackened. "On the contrary," he said, "I intend to go at it with renewed vigor. He said that 150,000 survivors, primarily Jews, are still in desperate need of help within enemy lines.

Declaring that he did not know whether or not the refugee board would continue to function after the collapse of Germany, O'Deyr said he had accepted the post "until the job is done or I am otherwise requested to leave." Congressional appropriations for the War Refugees Board extend only until June, 32.
